

The invention of satellite radio is one of the greatest new technologies of the past 50 years. It would not have been so popular or widely accepted had broadcast AM/FM radio been such a waste of time, with their poor programming and variety of music and news. In my opinion, the competition that satellite radio is bringing to the table may very well be the stimulus needed to prove to the broadcast giants of this country that what they have to offer, is NOT what the public really wants to hear. Thankfully we now have a choice.
